DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 19 to 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Beguinot et al (US Patent 5,645,794) in view of Henn et al (US Patent 6,045,633) for the reasons stated in the previous office action dated 9-20-06.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 1-22-07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. It was stated that present invention process recited in Claim 19 is directed to a hot rolled and tempered plastic mold tool of a steel alloy manufactured by hot rolling, hot leveling or free air cooling a hot leveled plate, tempering the air cooled plate and forming the air cooled plate into a plastic mold tooling. In contrast, Beguinot'794 "process uses a steel that must contain" boron to obtain "quenchability" and before the rolled or forged steel is employed for mold manufacture the steel is subjected to "quenching heat treatment". Moreover, Henn (which relates to a martensitic stainless steel rather than a tool steel) does not cure the deficiencies of Beguinot as any modification which can eliminate the "quenching heat treatment".

Art Unit: 1742

4. It is the examiner's position that the Beguinot'794 process on lines 49-60 in column 4 teaches steel plate can be directly quenched from rolling or forging with air. This is essentially the same process step as the present invention except prior art does not teach cooling on a rigid cooling table. It is, however, well known in the art, as evident by Henn'633 on lines 3 to 28 in column 7 that cooling steel plate on a rigid table to promote steel flatness and avoid sagging and wrinkling when manufacturing mold base for plastic injection molds is conventional practice. Hence it would be an obvious modification well within the skill of the artisan to incorporate cooling plate on rigid table in the Beguinot process since properties such as flatness without sagging and wrinkling are desired and sought.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
